THE London Journal

SATURDAY, June 9 1722

To the Author of the London Journal.

SIR,

MACHIAVEL tells us, that it is easie to find out a Man perfectly Good or perfectly Bad; Men generally fwim between the two Extremes, and know any Man in as good or bad Humour as himself, his Interest, or his Party make him, or as bad as he is represented by his professed or Party Enemies. Ask a Whig the Character of a neighbouring Tory, and he represents him as a Jacobite, an Enemy to publick Liberty, and a Professour, and on the other Side, if you enquire the Other's Character from his Tory Godfather, viz: of Baptism, he shall pass for a Commonwealth's Man, an Enemy to all forms of Monarchy, and an Encourager of all Kinds of Licentiousness and Faction; whereas an indifferent Man, converfing with each of them, shall find both men as the same Thing, and their Oppositions to proceed only from not converfing together, from an Inclination to thwart one another, or from the Intrigues of those who reap Advantage by setting them together by the Ears. 'Tis too great a Compliment to pay to our Adversaries, to suppose them to act upon a mistaken Principle against their true Interest, and 'tis certainly the Interest of every Man to be free from Oppression, and he will join in Measures to be so, if he is not terrify'd by the Fear of greater Oppression: It is undoubtedly true, that there are many Jacobites in England; but 'tis thinking better of them than they deserve, if we believe they will be so against their own Interests; and therefore, excepting the very few, who can hope to receive the Advantages of such a Revolution, the rest may be converted by shewing them that they can find better Protection and Security from the present Establishment, than by hazarding their Lives and Estates, and their Country's Happiness to bringing their Designs to pass. The only dangerous Jacobites, I ever feared, were those who took the same Methods to keep out the Sun, as turn'd out the Tories.

While Men enjoy Protection, Plenty and Happiness, they will always desire to maintain them, and never look after Revolutions; but when they smart, or fancy they feel their Advantages, which they once will think they have a Right to enjoy, they will endeavour to change their Condition, and in the Attempt they often change it for the worse; therefore whoever would endeavour to perform a perfect Establishment, muft make the People safe and contented under it, and so find their own Account in the Continuance of it: The Instruments of Tyranny (of which I hope we shall never have any occasion) are never to be depended upon in any Emergency; they will always be able to shift for themselves, and know how to make an Interest with a new Government, by betraying the old, which was the Cafe of the late King James, and will ever be the Cafe of others in the like Circumstances.

Every Man therefore, that is friendly and loyal to the Interest of his present Majesty, will endeavour to shew his Zeal, Affection, and make a proper Use of his excellent Disposition to publick and make his People happy, and to preserve our Constitution in Church and State, upon its true and solid Basis. Old Land-Marks are never to be removed, without producing Confusion and Law-suits, which for the most Part ruin both Parties. We have no exorbitant Grievances to redress; and if any the best which can be formed in a Utopian Commonwealth, yet I doubt the best we are capable of receiving. The present Distribution of Property renders us incapable of changing it for the better; and probably any Attempt to change it for the better, would conclude in an Absolute Monarchy. There are so many Interests engaged to support it, that whoever gets Power enough to destroy their Interests, will have Power enough to set up himself, as Oliver Cromwell did, and every one elfe will do in the same Circumstances, as we shall see while Men will trust to his Moderation.

No Man of Senfe and Fortune will venture the Happiness he is in full Possession of for imaginary Visions; and throw the Dice for his own Estate: Such desperate Gamesters carry their Whole about them, and their fairest Expectations depend upon Confusion, and the Misery of others; but such as have much to fear, and little to hope for, will acquiesce in their present Condition. This being the true Circumstance of the Nobility, Clergy, Gentry, rich Merchants, and the Body of the People, I hope they will exercise in such Measures as will most effectually preserve our present Establishment, and support the just Rights of the Crown, and the Liberties of the People, oppose all Usurpations on either side, and endeavour, in the most exemplary Manner, to punish all who shall dare to interpose between the Throne and the Subject, and spoil the Harmony which alone can make them both happy.

This is the Interest of all Parties, and of every Man in them, (very few excepted in respect of the rest, who make their Market of the others Differences.) I could agree yet (for a just Bent of Contention between them. It can be of no Consequence to either Party, if they are govern'd well, whether a Man of one Denomination or another governs them; and if they are oppressed, 'tis no Consolation that it is done by one whom they formerly called a Friend; whereas if they would agree together, no one durst oppress them. Those who are called Whigs, have no Intention to injure the Legal Establishment of the Church, and Seven Years Experience, when they have had the whole Power in their Hands, may convince any one they did not intend it; and the Tories will see they desire no more than their Establishment, and have no Thoughts of breaking in upon the Act of Toleration, which is the Right of all Mankind. The Whigs can have no Motive to do the One, nor the Tories the Other, when Party Opposition is laid aside; for how if a Whig injured by another receiving Advantages which he has not. Right or, and receives no Protection by, but may receive Help from, by preventing for his Children, Relations, or Friends? And how if a Tory injured in a great Neighbour's encroaching upon his own Way, can more than if he did not vote him out of all, which is the Cafe of Thousands who are unconcerned? The Distinctions about Government are as to end: Most of the Tories are asham'd of their old Absolute Principles, and many of the Modern Whigs ought to be asham'd of taking them up; and indeed they have no Right to reproach one another with either Principles or Practices, they both have drawn like wrong Lots in their Turns, and they have brought Misery on half of their pofs, that whilst they have been throwing the Dice for Victory, Strangers have been drawing the Stakes.

Indeed, I can't for what we differ about: We fight as Blindmen's Buff, and fall upon our Friends as well as Enemies: All the Grounds of Diffinction are now at an end, and the the benefit and Will Men of all Parties unite the same Thing, and ought to lay aside and forget the old Names; and because some Party for Liberty, without that Name is forgotten too; so in our Power to save our Selves. We are sure we have a Prince who has every Disposition to help us, if we lend our own Assistance, and finish the Measure of doing it; and on this supposition in God, our Country, and our Selves, if not the last we owe Endeavours. The means are easy, obvious, and legal, and the Success as strong as ever did, or ever can happen in any Contrivance of human Affairs. It is no less than the safety and Preservation of the best King, and the best Constitution upon Earth, and instead of almost the only People amongst whom there are any Remains of Liberty, Reason enough, when there are any Remains of Liberty, Reason enough, when there are any Remains of Liberty, Reason enough, when over him, & is thought there is one Regret the less by his Death.

At Eleven one Night last Week, a Foreigner riding in a Chair from the Earl of Pembroke's to his Lodgings near Hanover-Square, very narrowly escaped being plundered by the Chair-Men, who had begun to ride him; but some Gentlemen on Foot coming by, the Chair-men made a shift to get off, but have not since been heard of.

On Saturday Night last one David Powel, a Servant of Mr. Binns's of Shoemaker's, was robbed by two Foot-pads in his Way to Kensington: And as his Cloak amounted to no more than 40 s. they cried him heartily for not carrying more about him.

On the 6th Instant, the Artillery Company of this City made a very fine Appearance in Arms in St. James's Park; where they passed in Review before his Majesty, accompany'd by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, their Captain-General, and a great Number of the Nobility, and other Persons of Distinction. His Majesty was pleased to order the Sum of 500 l. to be paid into the Hands of their Treasurer, as a Mark of his Satisfaction and Favour, which is to be employ'd towards the building them a new Armory. At the same Time an humble Address was presented to His Majesty by Sir Gilbert Heathcote, their President, and Sir Gerrard Conyers, their Treasurer; which His Majesty most graciously receiv'd and answer'd. Several other Addresses have been lately presented to His Majesty, viz. from the Magistrates of the City of Aberdeen; from the Lieutenancy of the County of Southampton; from the Justices of the Peace assembled at Romford, &c. which were also graciously received.

Last Week there was a remarkable Tryal at Guildhall before the Lord Chief Justice Pratt, between Mrs. Susanna Layer, a young Gentlewoman of a moderate Fortune, Plaintiff, and John Watson, Esq; an old Gentleman of a great Estate (formerly an Upholsterer in Cornhill) Defendant. The Plaintiff made it appear, that she was Courted by the Defendant above a Year and a quarter, and that he had made her Promises of Marriage; for the Confirmation of which, several Letters were produced in Court. She further made it appear, that she had refused a suitable Match on account of her Engagements to him. The Jury considering the Matter, gave her 1000 Pounds Damage.

There are Letters from Yorkshire, which say, that there have been such Floods lately in the West-Riding about Elland and Rippon, occasion'd by a violent Thunder Shower, as carried away several Mills, and large Quantities of Woollen Manufactures, drown'd many Persons; with a dead Bodies out of their Graves, and did many hundred Pounds Damage to Houses, Mills, Goods and Manufactures.

From our Portsmouth Letters of the 4th Instant.

Commissions are expected down every Post, to fill up the Vacancies in the Dock Regiment, and the Companies are order'd to be completed, which will be done this Week, and then the Regiment will consist of 600 well-disciplin'd Men. Orders are arrived here for fitting out, with Dispatch, the Ipswich and Bredah, Guard-Ships, for Channel Service, who are to be man'd to their middle Complement, as the Yarmouth is, which Ship sailed on Thursday last to Spithead, in order to her proceeding to the Downs.

The Turbay and Essex, Guard-Ships, at Chatham, are also order'd and man'd to their middle Complement.

Last Week one Mr. Broom, a Gentleman, that lodg'd in the Temple, after Dinner at the Blue Posts Tavern, was struck with an Apoplectic Fit, of which he instantly died. And much about the same Time, a poor Man drop'd down dead at Every's Gate, Westminster.

On Saturday last the Lord Arundel was married to the Lady Wentworth, Sister to the Earl of Strafford.

About Two a Clock on Monday Night last, one Mr. Philip Martin, a Riding-Master, who was coming from the Camp in Hyde Park, was set upon by four Foot Pads, against whom he bravely defended himself; they fired three Pistols at him, by one of which he was wounded, so that it is thought he will hardly recover.

By Ships newly arrived from Lisbon, there is Advice, that the Fleet for Rio de Janeiro sailed from thence on the 17th past.

They write from Neath, May 28. that the following Vessels were lately arrived there with Copper and Lead Ore belonging to the Welch Copper Company, from Cornwall and Devonshire, viz. the Drake of Yarmouth, Arthur Cutts, Master, with 30 Tons of Lead Ore, and 15 Tons of Copper Ore; the Beginning of Saveney, Tho. Bunbury, Master, with 40 Tons of Copper; the Secret, ——— Richardson, Master, with 15 Tons of Copper Ore; and the Prince George, ——— Sweetzer, Master, with 40 Tons of Copper Ore.

We have from Carlisle a Commission of Oyer and Termi-

[illegible] The Grand Jury found Bills against two Persons for their Concern in the High Treason; some of them were try'd, and 12 found Guilty, and are to be executed the 29th Instant. Many more might have been try'd, but there was no Sufficient to Swear Twenty; and make but a few Examples out of so great a Number, and make them a Sacrifice for all the rest that had offended. The Commissioners are gone to Westmorland on the like Occasion.

We hear, that Mr. Monkworth, the British Minister at the Court of Turin, will be speedily recalled.

The Inquisition performed upon the Body of Mr Grace the Duke of Dorset, has had no manner of Effect, though the Operation was made with the same Master that was used on the Lord Bathurst's Butler (who died under the Experiment) and at the same Time too. Several Physicians who were consulted upon the Occasion, have declared it as their Opinion, that the Lord Bathurst's Butler had a Fever upon him at the Time he was inoculated.

It's said, that in Case Alexander Denton, Esq; succeeds Mr. Baron Page in the Court of Exchequer, that Gentleman will be succeeded in his Post of Attorney-General for the County of Lancaster by ——— Prescot, Esq; and in all probability in his Seat in Parliament for the Town of Buckingham also.

We are informed, that the Government will cause a Collection of Letters, containing Advices of the present Conspiracy, to be published at the Meeting of the Parliament.

They write from Bristol, that the Small-Pox has been inoculated there with good Success, by Dr. Breach, an eminent Physician in that City.

The private Letters from Paris are full of Complaints against the Management of the Visa. A great many Clerks are taken up and committed of numberless Forgeries in the Liquidations; which, 'tis feared, will be made use of as a Pretence for a second Visa; and if so, it will be so long before that Affair is finished, as to go near to break the Hearts of some of the most considerable Proprietors, who live at present either upon Credit, or the Sale of their liquidated Effects. As the Liquidations already made come to much more than the whole should amount to, as it was calculated to the Regent, they strip the remaining Papers with a Vengeance, in order to reduce them as near as possible to that Calculation. They handle the Swiss and all other Strangers very severely, on a pretended Suspicion, that they are in a Juggle with the Parisians to defraud the Visa, by causing a great Share of the Effects of the Natives to be liquidated under foreign Names. A Tax is laid on all Purchases of Effects in Houses, Lands, &c. of three Fifths of the Purchase-Money, to be paid in Specie; which, together with other heavy Impositions, have made the popular Outcries so loud, that, as those Letters say, the Court has Reason enough to remove to Versailles, to get out of the hearing of them.

Extract of our private Advices concerning the Plague.

Marseilles, May 27. The Distemper makes no Progress here. We have but a very few either Sick or Dead; but in all Appearance, it will rage in the Bastides, where the Number of the Sick encreases apace; and where the Distemper was communicated by some infected Goods that were sold thither. Our Galleys are yet clear of it, and the necessary Care is taken to keep them so Avignon, May 28. We have here about 8 or 10 Sick, and 3 or 4 Dead in a Day. On the 23d was made an Election of a Prior of the Augustines, at which assisted the Principal Officers of the Palace. The new Prior was immediately taken Sick of the Plague, and died on the 24th at Night.

Montpellier, May 29. All the visited Places in Languedoc are in perfect Health, save Sick in the Cevenoles, the Diocese of Alais, Uzes, or Viviers; only at Alais, it is remarked, they have had an intermitting Fever a few Days past among them, which denotes the Plague to be entirely ceased there.

On Thursday last the Lutestring Company exposed to Sale at their House in Threadneedle-street, a considerable Quantity of Broad English Alamodes and Lutestrings, and also the Lease of their House aforesaid.

Last Thursday was held a General Court of the South-Sea Company, which was called for making void a former Resolution of that Court, signifying, that no Agreement should be made with the Company of the Bank of England, till they had given Satisfaction to the South-Sea Company for Breach of former Contracts: And this Resolution was then accordingly made void, without much Debate, most opposing the Proceedings of the Directors but the Lord Mayor.

The Agreement now finished with the Bank, is for the Sale of 500,000 l. Annuities, which will be laid before another General Court of the South-Sea Company, on the 15th Inst. for their Resolution.

The East India Company daily expect the Arrival of the following Ships from India, viz. the King George, Capt. Worden, from Fort St. George; the London, Capt. Upton; the the Greenwich [Whale Cape, —— Kirby is dead in India] and the Cheshire, Capt. Gilbert, all from Bombay. The Francis, Capt. Newsham, and the Codogan, Capt. Hall, from China.

On Monday last some Gentlemen having been to visit the Governour of Chelsea Hospital, and not taking their Leave until it was late, the Governour order'd two of the Pensioners to guard them to Town; but the Company separating, their Guard did so too; one of which was the next Morning found murder'd, being stabb'd in no less than seven places near his Heart. 'Tis thought this Fact was committed by some Villains who had a Design to rob the Company, to which this unhappy Person was a Guard.

The same Night a Gentleman going Home in a Chair pretty late, was set upon by Four Foot Pads near Golden-Square; two of which held a Pistol to the Breast of each Chairman, whilst the other Two rifled the Gentleman of his Money, Watch, Sword, &c. whom not content with, they used him most barbarously. The Noise occasioned a Lady in the Neighbourhood to throw up the Sash, but she was soon frighten'd in again by the Discharge of a Pistol, so that the Rogues got off with their Booty.

We are informed, that one Brereton, a Hackney Coachman, claims the Honour and Estate of the late Lord Brereton, of Brereton Hall, in Cheshire, to which purpose he is gone down into the Country. 'Tis said, his Tune is very good to the same.

On the 30th of last Month an Issue directed from the Court of Chancery to the Common Pleas, relating to an Estate of about 4 or 5,000 l. per Annum, between Daniel Burr, Esq; Plaintiff, and Mr. Vanhatten, Executor of Sir Thomas Duval, Defendant, was try'd before the Lord Chief Justice King at Westminster. It was alledg'd on the Defendant's Side, that the said Sir Thomas was Non compos Mentis when the Will was made; but the contrary appearing by the Evidence, the Jury brought in their Verdict in Favour of the Plaintiff.

Every Mail brings fresh Complaints from our Protestant Brethren in the Palatinate, where Matters daily grow worse and worse; insomuch, that several Families are removed into other Countries.

§§§ Whereas Margaret Baliol, in an Advertisement in the London Journal of Saturday the 17th of February, 1721. set forth the Claims of the Scots Kingdom and Crown to Barnet Baliol, King thereof, and to their Heirs for ever, on the Quit-Rents arising out of the Province of Munster and Kildare in Ireland, the Tithes of the Clergy, and the Lands Temporal of the Five Ports of the Clergy there, granted by the late Kings William the Third, and since confirmed by the late Queen Anne, and by his Majesty King George, under their Great Seals of Ireland, in Consideration and full Satisfaction, and discharge of a 30 l. Debt of the same King to the Crown of England, by the Old Peter Baliol, and the Interest thereof. The said Margaret Baliol, one of the Coheirs, being fairly entitled to the same Claim, depending on all Persons concerned to take Notice thereof, desires me to let the said pretended Claimants to our other Rights, who desire to set their Feet.

MARGARET BALIOL.

And for answer to these the Publication in an Advertisement in the London Journal of Saturday the 24 Day of June following, by Gaw Douglas, Esquire, Heir at Law to the Body of the Prince, therefore the Old Pretender, as he assumes the Name of Peter Baliol, and to whom the Old Pretender gave Power, as he assumes Authority of such Assignment, and more than 60 years the Estate of Baliol, as he assumes, and other Estates, hereby gives Notice, That the Prince was then in Italy, and when the Pretended Assignment to the Estate of the Late Royal Family, and also Legislative Power of the Nation; And therefore, if any Prince or Persons shall presume to such Assumed Authority, they will be answerable to the Pretended Assignee and Heir of the said Margaret Baliol, such Prince to answer to such Heir. And Margaret Baliol hereby gives Notice, that the Scots Commissioners can find Precedents in any Parliament Journal for the same but only in the Old Margaret Baliol.
